Welcome to the 40TH Australasian Neuroscience Society Annual Scientific Meeting

As we start to emerge from the unprecedented impacts of a global pandemic, 2022 represents a year to reconnect and strengthen the Australasian Neuroscience community. The value of medical research and discovery neuroscience has never been more important. We hope this meeting will reunite the neuroscience community to reflect and celebrate the 41st year of ANS, and the outstanding scientific contributions and discoveries our researchers continue to make.

Our Local Organising Committee, chaired jointly by Associate Professor Jess Nithianantharajah and Professor Zane Andrews, are working together to ensure that ANS2022 in Melbourne brings together a stimulating 3-day scientific program of international and national plenaries, as well as symposia, oral and poster presentations on diverse neuroscience themes from researchers across career stages. Set in the atmospheric Pullman Hotel in Albert Park, our goal is to create an environment and social program that promotes and supports networking and connectivity.

We look forward to reconnecting with you in Melbourne in December 2022!

The ANS2022 Local Organising Committee

The ANS Annual Scientific Meeting 40 years and going strong

The Australasian Neuroscience Society (ANS), encompassing both Australia and New Zealand, is one of Australasia's largest biomedical societies. ANS was founded in 1971 making it one of the world's oldest neuroscience societies. Our society enables interactions and links between the laboratory and clinic, between different disciplines, between experienced and young scientists and between neuroscientists and the public to embrace the wonder of, and challenges posed by, the human brain and nervous system.

We are highly respected internationally as a leading organisation, particularly in the Asia-Pacific region. Our members come from diverse disciplines and work in laboratories, classrooms and clinical environments. We have joint arrangements to promote neuroscience in the region with the Federation of Asian-Oceania Neuroscience Societies (FAONS) and the Asia-Pacific regional committee of the International Brain Research Organisation (IBRO). More broadly, ANS has close links with the Federation of European Neuroscience Societies (FENS) and the Society for Neuroscience (SfN) in the USA.

The ANS Annual Scientific Meeting is one of the largest annual biomedical meetings held in the Australasian region. What started out four decades ago as a 150-person meeting has grown into a major meeting of up to 700 delegates attending presentations by numerous highly acclaimed national and international experts.

ANS 2022 represents an excellent opportunity for your organisation to be represented to a wide audience. It is ideally placed to offer an unparalleled opportunity to meet these individuals in a face-to-face environment.

Your partnership will enable you to ask key questions and gain significant market intelligence, developing an essential platform from which to promote your products, and ultimately, to increase your market penetration.

Don't miss the exciting opportunity to showcase your organisation at this national meeting. The current and next generation of Australasia's brightest minds will be there to meet you.

We invite you to take some time to read through the opportunities available, and consider how you can contribute to a brighter future for Australian and New Zealand brain science. We want to enhance the quality of life for our citizens through a greater understanding of the nervous system, and with your help, we can.

The 2022 meeting represents an excellent opportunity for your organisation to be represented to a wide audience.
